STAGE 2B: Corporate funding: are you ready for the effects of new bank regulation?

The finalisation of Basel III, taking effect in the UK from 1 July 2025, will bring in a number of changes, especially around the calculation of risk-weighted assets. Under the changes, banks will have to reconsider their capital allocation strategies. But what do banking regulations like Basel III mean for corporates and how can they optimise funding structures as regulatory changes come into play?

This session will look at the likely impact of the Basel III Reforms, exploring how these will be introduced, the key changes corporates need to watch out for, how the cost of borrowing may be affected, and how capital regulations may differ between jurisdictions. We'll also consider expected changes arising from the liquidity crisis of Spring 2023 and focus on the steps corporates can take to optimise funding in the new regulatory environment.

This session will give an understanding of how the insurer approaches a bulk purchase annuity (BPA) transaction, which will help the treasurer better prepare their own options for the sponsor and trustees of a maturing defined benefit (DB) pension plan. It will focus on helping the treasurer understand the role of potential BPA in securing the right outcome for a DB scheme and how this is achieved, exploring:

- The needs of the balance sheet, the trustee and the member
- The role of BPA in buy in/buy out in assisting with the needs
- Risk premium vs. surplus
- Certainty vs. return
- The factors taken into account by the insurer when assessing a scheme to insure.

Treasury Lab 3C: ISO20022 compliance: a 2024 roadmap from UK banks & AccessPay

ISO 20022 is fundamentally changing how payment data is exchanged between corporations, financial institutions and banks. The operational impact of the new financial messaging standard is huge. And some changes will already be mandatory from November 2024.

ISO 20022 has been described by AccessPay CEO, Anish Kapoor, as one of the biggest shake-ups in the payments space in the last two decades. The implications are huge; if businesses aren't compliant, payments fail.

Alarming, 52% of businesses recently surveyed by AccessPay have made no preparations for these changes. Businesses need to be ready, and fast. But it's not that simple. Implementation can be challenging, and it requires resources from your finance team. Businesses can't afford to wait - they must act now.

AccessPay is teaming up with the UK's leading experts to give practical advice on how to ensure compliance. Plus, you'll gain actionable steps on what the banks see as 'best practice' for a successful migration.

In this session, you will learn about:

- What it means for corporates to be ready for ISO 20022 in 2024, 2025 and beyond
- Exclusive access to the bank's perspective on ISO 20022
- ISO 20022's far-reaching implications, and the challenges of preparing for the migration
- Advice on what a successful ISO 20022 project roadmap looks like including key milestones and team responsibilities
- The advantages of introducing a beneficiary portal to standardise payments and ensure ISO 20022 compliance from day one.

If you're not prepared for ISO 20022 in November 2024, this talk is for you. Start executing your ISO 20022 transition with confidence.

	Suzanne Heywood’s story is remarkable. From setting sail with her parents and brother on a three-year world voyage on a yacht, to what became a decade-long adventure with little formal schooling or opportunities for friendships. She returned to the UK at 17 to study at Oxford, before studying at Cambridge, working in HM Treasury and McKinsey. Suzanne now works as the COO of Exor, and the Executive Chair of CNH and Iveco, among other roles. She will share her story and discuss the lessons learned about resilience and purpose. Suzanne Heywood (Lady) Talent Auditorium
